“You’re Hired!” ... Strategies for Successful Job Seeking

Dubuque, IA - In today’s competitive job market, employers are looking for applicants with the skills, training/education and customer service to fit their company culture. Job seekers are being challenged to use a variety of job search methods, update their skills and education, develop professional resumes and cover letters and sharpen their interview skills.

If you’re beginning your job search, thinking about a career change, or have been frustrated with your job search results, don’t miss this GREAT opportunity for job seekers!

“You’re Hired!” ... Strategies for Successful Job Seeking will be held Tuesday, September 15, 2009 from 8:00 am – 1:00 pm at NICC Town Clock Center for Professional Development and Iowa Works at 680 Main Street in Dubuque, Iowa. The event will include a keynote presentation by Tom Barton with Barton Wealth Management. His topic will cover how to embrace this period of transition to feel less overwhelmed and frustrated and more capable of embracing the excitement that a good job search can create. Human Resource professionals in the community will speak about résumé building, interview tips, skills identification and building and job search strategies. There will also be the opportunity to sign up for 1:1 mentoring appointments to critique your resume, participate in a mock interview, or build a resume on Wednesday, September 16, 2009.

There is no cost for this event, but registration is recommended by September 11, 2009 by either calling (563) 557-8271 ext. 380, or emailing blumm@nicc.edu.
